

Clients, Partners, & Friends,

These are unprecedented times, which can lead to challenges in determining the proper response and action to the things happening in our lives. Accordingly, I just want to reach out to make sure you all were aware of our commitment to protection, education, and continuity. I want to personally assure you that we are monitoring the outbreak of the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) closely.

To date, we have been taking all necessary actions and remain committed to implementing all recommended measures to protect our employees and their families.

In addition to people working from home, we have also suspended all company travel during this time. In addition, since our inception, as an organization we have been setup with the ability to remain viable with a distributed workforce and our team members working from home. You should know that we will remain as contactable and productive as possible during this unique period.

Our team will be able to respond to your communications through all the usual channels (email, chat, phone, video, web, etc.). Naturally, with the travel restriction, we hope you will support us as we transition to online meetings when onsite meetings were previously scheduled. Please know we are doing everything possible to ensure effective continuity on projects and support with the least possible negative impact.

Health and safety are all of our responsibilities. We are encouraging everyone to practice safety measures at home and when out of the house. We thank you for your continued support, and we will continue to keep you informed as we take additional action. Feel free to reach out to me or anyone else on our team if you have any questions or concerns. We wish you all the best.

Sincerely,
David Faye
